Species listed in CITES Appendix III

A range country can add a species to Appendix III at any time without approval from the full CITES body. It is an international trade tracking tool to determine if an Appendix I or II listing may or may not be warranted.

U.S. CITES export permits are issued only after finding that the species (including parts & products) are:

- legally acquired;
- the export is not detrimental to the survival of the species in the wild (not required for Appendix III); and
- live specimen will be prepared and shipped humanely.

Likelihood of proposals to list additional species in the CITES Appendices

- The next CITES Conference of the Parties (CoP) is in November 2022. Species listing proposals must be submitted by June. It is likely an Appendix I or II listing proposal will be submitted by a range country for a species that occurs within the U.S. (e.g., Kinosternon (Mud turtles) due to increased illegal trade of Mexico turtles in the genus).
- Public input solicited by the USFWS in the March 2021 Federal Register Notice resulted in several recommendations for additional turtle listing proposals. The Federal Register Notice denoting the species proposals the U.S. are considering for the CoP should be published soon.
- Conversely, there's been no indication that the USFWS is considering adding any turtles to Appendix III.
